Foreword

The Junior Class of the Wadsworth High School is pleased to present this contribution to the school activities of the year 1917-1918.

The class is nearing the end of its third year in old Wadsworth Hi and it gives us no little pleasure to close the year with this evidence of our skill and handiwork. We have looked forward to the completion of the present effort with much eagerness. Even last year we felt our editorial powers beginning to bud forth with all the fragrance and richness of the American Beauty rose. But Mr. Elliott suggested that we conserve our powers for the present endeavor, so as to assure a production that would do high honor to the Class of 1919.

While we believe the present Annual possesses more literary skill than any previous one, we do not claim undue honor for the attainment. The school that has trained us is stronger than it has ever been before.

Great have been its strides since we entered as verdant Freshmen. Then there was only one building, excellent in structure, of course, but badly crowded. Now there are three buildings and work is under headway for a four room annex. Then there was no manual training, now an excellent department housed in what was formerly the gymnasium. At that time there was no home economics, now two well equipped rooms serve to make proficient this useful department. The commercial department was then in its infancy, now it is almost complete in equipment, and the work done equals that done in any business college. At that time there was no library, now a commodious room well furnished and equipped is for our use. Chemistry and general science have also been added with equipment as good as money can buy. Next year French will be added and we expect to converse to some extent in the language of Lafayette.

While we have been in Wadsworth High there has been a marked advance in athletics. We have won a great deal more than half the games played. We have added complete sets of football, basketball and baseball suits to our equipment, as well as lockers, shower baths, tackling dummy, etc.

These bounties and successes have not been attained by chance. Three elements have brought them about: a loyal, energetic and faithful student body, a well trained, sympathetic and professional teaching corps, and a superintendent and Board of Education who are never satisfied unless it is the best for Wadsworth.

The Class of 1919 trust this little volume will bring pleasure to you and credit to us.

Seniores Priores

Our class is assembled here, again,
Dear teachers, to say goodbye,
And tell you we appreciate
All you've done for us at High.

Four years ago, as Freshies,
We entered this hall of fame.
The upper-classmen laughed at us
As if we were to blame.

Through Sophomore and Junior years
We studied to secure
The rosy heights of Seniorhood
And make our glory sure.

As Seniors, we have studied hard;
But we've had our pleasures, too.
And we acknowledge that we owe
Some thanks, teachers, to you.

No more we'll disturb the 'sembly hall,
Nor wander through and through
The school from roof to basement,
To find mischief to do.

We've searched each nook and corner
Of dear old Wadsworth High;
And the love we've come to have for it
Makes us loth to say goodbye.

And now, dear schoolmates,we must part.
May success befall each one;
And naught but happiness be yours
Till all your work is done.

Senior Class History

We entered Wadsworth High School
In the autumn of 'Fourteen,
And every upper-classman said
That we were twice as green
As any class before us!
But why should they make fun?
Our class was easy twice as big—
For we were seventy-one.

Our Algebra and Latin,
We hewed down at a stroke,
And mastered our Biology,
While English was a joke.
We delved in General History
When we were Sophomores,
And started Plane Geometry
And Caesar's Gallic Wars.

And who can count the parties
We had that Junior year;
And Senior, too? Most two a week.
The teachers thought it queer
That we would sleep in classes
And stumble through the hall.
No matter—all admitted
We had it on them all.

In basket-ball and base-ball,
And on the foot-ball field,
Our boys were mighty giants;
The enemy had to yield.
The way we did athletic work
Will always make us laugh;
Of W. H. S. athletic teams,
Our class gave more than half.

'Twould be a useless labor
Our further deeds to trace,
In gathering bumps and glory—
They're much too commonplace.
In different trails we're bound to roam;
Our future's but a dream.
May fortune bless the members of
Our good old class, "Eighteen."

—Gertrude Harter, '18.

EDGAR CURTIS

Football 3, 4. Baseball 2, 3, 4. When being interviewed "Cookie" is so blushingly modest about his accomplishments that we have to collect them for ourselves. Space will not permit us to list them here. "A man that fortune's buffets and rewards Has ta'en with equal thanks."

LURA EVERHARD

Senior Play. Although seldom heard from, Lura surprises us greatly by her wisdom. She can be depended upon, no matter what the occasion. "A light heart lives long."

CARL ROTH

Basketball, 3, 4. Senior Play. Here is a fellow who goes about everything he undertakes in a business-like way, and does it with all his might. A thoroughly likeable personage is "Rothy." 'His calmness and his generous mind, Prove him superior to his kind."

SYBIL KREIDER

Basketball, 2, 3, 4. Senior Play. Secretary Crestomathian Literary Society, 4. "Kate" is a girl whose very name suggests what we term, in the lingo of days gone by, a "Jolly Good Sport." Also quite popular, and an enthusiast of "Movies." "My glory is to subdue men."

OZRO BISHOP

How can the Seniors go astray when in their midst is such an exponent of propriety? By this we do not mean that "Ozzy" always studies, but that he is a fine fellow for a friend. "A good strong character with independence and force."

MINNIE ANDERSON

Probably no person in W. H. S. has more friends than she. Her geniality and straight-forwardness have won many, while her temperament has won the rest. "Still makes new conquests and maintains those past."

ROBERT HARPER

Football, 3, 4. Basketball, 4. In a football game, you can see "Bob" in the center of the field—but no, a streak and he and the ball are across the line. Plays basketball with the same "pep" as football. "Down thru their line he plunged, Nor stopped, nor stayed, till victory was won."

HELEN EVERHARD

Treasurer Athletic Association, 4. Very sober, also very popular, possessed of an unruffled temper. Always did believe (and does yet) in equal suffrage. Got a demerit once. "Trouble lay but lightly on her heart."

STANLEY BIRKBECK

Baseball 2, 3, 4. Basketball 2, 3, 4. Football 3, 4. Senior Play. "Bury" has always supported W. H. S. in an athletic way, but it is said he can study on occasions. "Hail to thee, blithe spirit."

JOYCE GUNSAULIS

Secretary-Treasurer Senior Class. Official guardian of "The Sheckel Bag of 1918," which duty she fulfills in a manner characteristic of herself. Making an enviable record in public speaking. "Do nothing to excess."

GEORGE BAKER

Football, 2, 3, 4. Basketball, 2, 3, 4. Baseball, 1, 2, 3, 4. Senior Play. W. H. S. is not jealous of "Bake;" it is proud of him. Besides being a leader in High School affairs, he is a representative man of his class. "By nature honest, by experience wise, Healthy by temperament and exercise."

MABEL HOOVER

There is ever a smile somewhere, and here it is, forever. No matter what may pass over, it leaves undisturbed the placid mind, the contented spirit, and — the smile. "All good work is done without boasting."

EVA LONG

Another "short" personage with a "long" head. Will undoubtedly go on the stage as a Latin Play Expert. Declares there are some surprising words in Virgil. "Her genius and the midnight oil."

ERNEST SEIBERLING

"Pete" can't rid himself of the idea that High School was founded for the dissemination of knowledge. Likes Latin so well he learns plays by heart. "Beholding the bright countenance of truth in the quiet and still air of delightful studies."

THELMA SWIGART

Senior Play. She seems most quiet and undemonstrative, yet is frequently seen and heard in the noisiest company. Can you account for it? That's easy; she plays the piano in Chapel. "Amiability shines by its own light."

ROBERT HILLIARD

Football, 2, 3, 4. "Yuns" is a graceful sort of a lad upon whom the traditional Senior has not sat too heavily. A bad ankle kept him out of the first few football games, but he strengthened his "rep" later in the season. "Do not let the burdens of tomorrow Break the back of today."

DAISY WOLFORD

The Editorial Staff have been racking their brains for over two weeks to find something good enough to say for Daisy. "By the work one knows the workman."

ADRIAN BAISH

When in after years we will think of "Abe," the picture of a big-hearted, good-natured friend will certainly arise before our eyes. "A soul as full of mirth as voice of pride."

GERALDINE MANN

"Gerry" heard of W. H. S. and as the reports were good, decided to come here. If West High should ever have another like "Gerry," we would certainly be delighted by another transition. "Life is too short for mean anxieties."

JOHN BROWN

Student Athletic Manager, 4. "Mart" is easily the greatest poet W. H. S. has ever produced. Has shown his loyalty by successfully filling the job of Athletic Manager. "And friend received with thump upon the back."

GRACE AUBLE

Senior Play. Always starting something or other. Quite a fluent linguist, but does not worry over scholastic matters. "Her lamp goeth not out by night."

CHARLES O'MEARA

Football, 3, 4. Senior Play. "Chuck" is the man who goes about with the "sober" face and the grinning heart. Coax the smile up his trachea, and the real "Pat" is revealed. "Labor omnia vincit."

ANNA MEAGER

"Let us then be up and doing,
With the heart and head begin;
Still achieveing, still pursuing,
Learn to labor and to win."

Anna applies this not only to school, but to life itself.

VILAS BIXLER

Football 3, 4. "Bix" has been Senior Class President and center on the Football Team so long that he has contracted the habit of being the center of class activities. "Tho' modest, on his unembarrassed brow, Nature has written 'Gentleman.' "

GERTRUDE HARTER

Basketball 2, 3, 4. Senior Play. Secretary Calo Philo Literary Society, 4. Whenever there is a High School entertainment to be gotten up, "Gert" is always on hand. "Of my merit—On that point you yourself may judge."

WILLIAM CAINE

Basketball, 4. Football, 2, 3, 4. Senior Play. "Bill" believes in minimum effort and maximum return. This does not mean that he does not work, for he is a wonder in Virgil. "In every gesture, dignity."

ILA NICE

Senior Play. We are sorry we have not the space to tell of "Dutch's" humor and good-heartedness. Untold latent energy is hid in this modest young lady, not only in a dramatic way but in every way possible. "Youth comes but once in a lifetime."

JOSEPH NEATH

Football, 2, 3, 4. Senior Play. President Crestomathian Literary Society, 4. Joe is rumored to have been hired as master-mechanic for Henry Ford. Besides being a chemist of some note and a good athlete, he is a debater of ability. "Whence is thy wiseness? Hath thy toil Over books consumed the midnight oil?"

PAULINE KINDIG

Basketball 3, 4. Pauline was one of the girls who put Girls' Basketball where it is—on top. Her playing is an example of her energy and perseverance. "A willing helper does not wait 'till she's asked."

MERLE KOPPES

Football 3, 4. Senior Play. "Shagg" came to us from Medina in his Junior year and promptly Wadsworth High School's "football stock jumped." No matter what he undertakes, he does it in the same straight-forward way. "Big in soul, hand and heart."

ONEETA PORTER

She came to us this year and slipped so quietly into place that we scarcely realized it. She is one of those faithful, always-there people. "A shy face is beter than a forward heart."

BESS HARTMAN

Basketball, 2, 3, 4. Secretary Crestomathian Literary Society, 4. The rumor was let loose by some one who has inside information that her interior cranium is a conglomerate mass of angles, cosines, tangents and curves. Anyway she's a fine mathematician and a better sport. "Learning by study must be won."

MILDRED CLEGG

Mildred is a very sedate young lady, all smiles and giggles. She is most diligent in her studies and vastly learns in every chapel hour. "Care to our coffin adds a nail, no doubt; And every smile so merry draws one out."

History of the Junior Class

In September, 1915, the present Juniors entered High School as Freshmen. After some period of receiving the unpleasant part of the jokes of the older ones, they got down to work; and, at the end of the school year, with scarcely an exception, they passed on into second year work.

During the Sophomore year, a few boys took up athletics and made a success of it. The class was also allowed to take part in Rhetoricals. After having a party or two, they closed the year, and, dropping a few, were ready to take up the work of a Junior Class.

In the fore part of the year, they organized, and decided to produce an annual, with the consent of the faculty, which was given. The work for this has been going on, and gives promise of early completion. During this year, also, a few more boys have taken up athletics, showing much promise of becoming first-class athletes. A Dramatic Club has been organized in the High School. The work of the Juniors in this club deserves much credit. The abilities of some, shown in this work, exceeded our highest hopes. Now that the end of the year is almost here, it is to be hoped that without a single exception the class will next year take up Senior work.

—Florence Waltz, '19.

VANCE BALDWIN

"Wancy" doesn't try to knock you down and make you like him; but when you know him, it's mighty hard to keep from it. "And when a lady's in the case, You know all other things give place."

HAZEL GRIFFITHS

Annual Board. An expert in Shorthand, but fine in any branch she undertakes. "She's a lady and that's a word that signifies a world of excellence."

OWEN LIBERT

"Bates" showed exceptionally good taste when he joined the '19s this fall. He is a valuable addition to any class. "His words are bonds, his oaths are oracles."

ETHEL YOUNG

One of the most prominent, yet withal the smallest of the figures in the activities of '19, is Ethel. She is so quiet that you do not realize she is here, until you hear her recite on some difficult theme. "Here's to the girl who neither stoops to conquer nor tip-toes to be seen."

VERNA KRABILL

Verna is the girl to be depended upon to do the right thing at the right time. Even tho' quiet, she is very active socially. "No need to rack my brain for pleasant things to say of her."

FLOYD GRISSOM

"Charlie." A very fluent speaker; also a main-stay of the Dramatic Club. "None but himself can be his parallel."

LORNA SIMCOX

The Portage Lakes are her favorite roosting places. A good deal like a clock, always going. "It is tranquil people who accomplish much."

ERNEST MARGULIES

Annual Board. Unusual business ability and a strong inclination to please have made "Him" a favorite not only with the Juniors but with the whole High School. "I take incessant toil to be my lot."

WILLIAM STRAITON

Football, 3. A "whale" in German, also a good football player. The only one in Hi who can successfully pilot a drug store thru thick and thin. "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter."

HELEN DICKERSON

Annual Board. When one thinks of Helen, unconsciously one's mind turns to the dainty cartoons and artistic drawings she makes. These are but an outward expression of her inward self. "Where the stream runneth smoothest, the water is deepest."

WESLEY GUY

"Wes" never says die. Perhaps his most striking trait is stick-to-itiveness. Can be depended on, no matter what the occasion. "Far may we search before we find A heart so manly and so kind."

HALCYON OLIN

Annual Board. "Billy" is a girl who worked from the word "go" and can now sit back and see the fruits of her labor. "And glides in modest innocence away."

OLIVE NICE

Annual Board. "Snappy, scrappy, always happy." Add to this a good sized dash of gray matter and "Slim" is the result.

HAROLD SLANKER

Football, 3. "Trilby" greatly surprised us when he landed 'Varsity tackle this year. Good luck for next. Always seeking for the hidden truths. "The lion is not so fierce as they paint him."

RUBY MILLS

Like a dainty little violet or a matchless pearl, this admirable young lady rewards her friends with a sweetness and a charm that are unique. "Vain man forbear, of cares unload thy mind; Forget thy hopes and give thy fears to wind."

FRANCIS BOLICH

Class President, 3. Annual Board, 3. His favorite study is chemistry, but he shines in everything he undertakes. A conscientious worker, a thoroughly good fellow and a friend of everyone in High School. "I love experiments; I'm always making them."

RHEA WELTY

She left once, but could not find a better class, so came back. She has a unique charm which is envied by all her friends. "She doeth little kindnesses which most leave undone or despise."

WILLARD HUNSBERGER

Football, 1, 2, 3. Baseball, 1, 2, 3. Junior Class Vice President. Stage "Boss" of Dramatic Club. Wrestling. Worry about next year's Football team, and five studies keep "Hunks" occupied in school; outside there are social affairs, religion, and running that Dodge. "It is a friend ly heart that hath plenty of friends."

FLORENCE WALTZ

Junior Class Secretary-Treasurer. She is the one who put the '19 on the map scholastically. Reads Cicero for diversion. "True as the dial to the sun, Altho it be not shined upon."

RUSSELL HOWARD

"Jock" has athletic aspirations and says that he is going to be a president at least. "Good things rarely come in large packages."

BARRAS BIRKBECK

Vice President Calo Philo. A man who will do what he says—and a rare specimen at that. If you want some good advice or a cheering word go to Barras. "His worth is warrant for his welcome hither."

MARY MORRISON

Mary is quiet, reserved and studious. She is also very loyal. Space will not allow a chronicalling of her many fine points. "Gentle in method, resolute in action."

ELVYN RICKERT

Elvyn has the peculiar ability of being able to procure numerous nicknames. He has a very studious and serious expression. He is a woman-hater (?). But just the same, Elvyn will get through. "The life but speaks the true heart within."

EDNA SEIB

Edna is so very bashful that we could not get her to say anything about herself. After questioning a few of her friends, we learned that she is the enviable possessor of a genial disposition, a willingness to help and a loyalty that is surprising. "Care lies but lightly on her heart."

VERDA ROPP

She is one who has given '19 her best ever since she entered the class three years ago. She says "some things make her mad," but is never seen with anything else than an even temper and a generous disposition. "Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast."

MYRON SHAFFER

Annual Board. He is the diminuative member of the Class of '19. He is a full partner of the firm of "Pardee & Shaffer," joke and pun experts. Myron is a very persistent little "Donkey." "Little but mighty."

MIRIAM KREIDER

A "Tiny" little body, gray eyes, pretty hair, and a sweet disposition. "Her very foot hath music in it."

MARVIN ROHN

"Rohney" is an ambitious little lad, always to be depended upon if there are any important class activities undone. Although firm supporter of Wadsworth Hi's athletic interests. "It pays to be happy."

AARON D. PARDEE

Annual Board. "Ike" has a much higher viewpoint than the rest of us, which probably accounts for his popularity. He is one of those "little" persons who make themselves felt by genius. "The ladies' hearts he did trepan."

VIRA BROUSE

Vira is one of the greatest workers in the Junior Class—although few realize her ability, because she is very quiet and unassuming. "All her talents she gave to school."

THURMAN HARTMAN

Known to fame as "Josh." Combines a clear, thorough judgment with a ready wit and a genial good nature. "A merry heart maketh a cheerful countenance."

WILLA COPLIN

Willa came all the way from West Virginia to be a '19. We are glad she so decided; for a sunny, genial disposition is a valuable acquisition. "When she blushes and looks down, Beware! Beware!"

RHEA SHAFFER

She is a very modest young lady; and while well known to few, is declared by all to possess admirable qualities, one of them being a willingness to accommodate. "Silence is more eloquent than words."

EDITH CAHOON

Annual Board. Quiet, unassuming, very sensible; what more could be said for any girl? "She that hath knowledge spareth words."

IRENE WEAVER

Tall, slender, active socially, but gets good grades just the same. Very popular on her own merits. "Good humor only teaches charms that last."

Crimes Increased by the War

Since America entered the War, crimes, especially robberies, have greatly increased in number. Here in Wadsworth, bold burglaries have taken place on nights when the moon was shining brightly. The Day Drug Store was broken into, and a box of candy and a tooth brush were stolen. Prince & Orr once sustained a loss of several hundred knives through the Jesse James gang—youthful thieves who are blamed for many such terrible crimes. A few houses have been entered, and clothing has been stolen. Men have been held up near the railroad tracks and deprived of their money.

One attempted robbery holds our attention, however. Fortunately, the thief became frightened, and ran away before he could do any stealing. One night, Professor Deetz, of W. H. S., heard a noise in his garage. He went down stairs to investigate. While in the kitchen, he saw some one coming from the garage to the house. The burglar tried to open the back door, but could not. All at once he went out to the street, apparently to see if anyone was coming. When the intruder left the door, Mr. Deetz grabbed two hatchets and ran after him. He saw the man on the street; so he hid himself in an angle of the house. There Prof. Deetz stood, brandishing his hatchets and waiting for the robber to pass his hiding place on his way to the back porch. Mr. Deetz intended to strike him with a hatchet and stun him; he would then tie him up and 'phone for the police. The professor was terribly disappointed when he saw the thief look around him and run down street.

Let us hope that he won't be bothered by burglars in the future.

Sophomore Class History

On September 3, 1916, there poured into the welcoming fold of Wadsworth High School, a new Freshman Class, a little shy perhaps, but determined to make a name for itself that would go down in the annals of the old High School. In accordance with this strong determination, the Freshmen threw aside all social activities, and started to work in earnest on the task set before them. Weeks passed, and finally months, until a year had elapsed. Their efforts had not been in vain.

The Sophomore year, as yet unfinished, they started with the same aim. With shining faces, the members of the class look forward to the supreme moment when they shall leave the school and follow unknown and separate paths of life, in nineteen hundred and twenty.

Tests

In school there's one thing we detest,
And that's to make a monthly test.
It makes us cram the night before
Until our eyes are stiff and sore;
Our brain is full of subtle stuff;
We think we ought to get enough
To make a ninety on our card
And cause our dad to swallow hard
And say, "My son, you're doing well.
I s'pose you'll pass—but time will tell."

Our Mother dear, and Sister Sue
Will say, "We sure are proud of you."
And Brother Bill, I most forgot—
He'll say, "This stuff's all tommyrot;
Of course the kid is goin' to pass
And be the leader of his class."
My Uncle Jerry, (bless his heart)—
His hand will for his pocket start
To bring forth, to my great surprise,
A dollar right before my eyes.

But, by the morning's early light,
The knowledge we acquired that night
Has vanished from our clouded brain
Never to be seen again.
And when we face the questions there,
Our mind is blank as empty air.
Is our grade ninety?—Goodness, no!
It's fallen thirty points below.

A Garden of Green Vegetables

At the beginning of the school year, the gardener came to look over his plants. As usual, some were stronger than others. There were some that needed the assistance of props; but, after a few weeks, they were able to hold their heads up alone.

Now, there were some vegetables who struck a stone while they were growing downward, and this was Latin. One bright morning one of the gardeners came and told us that some of us had better go to work or change our course of growing. Consequently, there were a few that turned out to be some other kind of vegetable than they had planned to be at first. Even then, some of us could hardly keep up with the rest. One other gardener told us that if we didn't do better we would commence to wilt and die.

There were other plants than us in the garden. They were continually teasing us. Every time we turned our heads, some of the older plants would tease us; and our nice green leaves would almost turn red. One day, a gardner named Mr. Deetz told us we were trying to make a vaudeville out of the vegetable garden. And sometimes the gardeners would give us demerits; and at an entertainment, one of the more experienced plants told us how to act to escape receiving demerits.

Our group of plants had no time for parties and receptions; we were always full of business. So we expect that this crop of vegetables, to be gathered in 1921, will be the best of all.

Football—1917

At the beginning of the school year of 1917, the prospects for a good foot-ball season were fair indeed. About twenty-five men were on hand for practice. After several days of work, we played a practice game with Company G. The regular team started the game, but, after scoring two touch-downs, were relieved and the second team was put in; the game ended with our boys well in the lead.

Our first scheduled game of the year was with Ashland at Ashland. This was the first time Wadsworth had ever met Ashland on the gridiron; so no one made predictions concerning the outcome of the contest. It proved to be the most exciting game of the year. Wadsworth started the scoring when Caine went through tackle for a touchdown. Then Ashland made two touch-downs in quick succession from long forward passes. This only served to arouse the fighting spirit of the boys, and Harper made a forty-yard run for a touch-down. The score at the end of the game was W. H. S. 14—A. H. S. 13.

We next met Akron South at Wadsworth, and, although "farmer boys," easily defeated them. Baker carried the ball over the line and we won 7—0.

On October 5th, we journeyed to Millersburg, where, in a hard fought game, which was ushered in by the rain, we defeated them, 7—0. Birkbeck made the touch-down on the tandem formation, which was responsible for most of our ground gaining.

Then, on October 17th, school was dismissed in the afternoon, and a large body of students accompanied the team to Medina. We walloped our old rivals, 14 to 0, completely playing them off their feet. Koppes, on a tackle buck, and Baker on the tandem, and a safety, brought our scores.

Millersburg came to Wadsworth on the 25th. The visitors put up a game battle; but two forward passes, with Baker on the receiving end, netted us 14 points. Millersburg went home defeated, 14 to 0.

Next came the most important contest of the season with Orrville, November 3rd, at home. Last season Orrville spoiled our record by giving us our only beating of the year. We went into the game determined to win, and, although they greatly outweighed us, we defeated them, 14 to 0. Baker and Hunsberger contributed the touch-downs.

After a two weeks' rest, we went to Orrville. In an inch of snow, we fought to a scoreless tie. Neither team was able to score, because of the precariousness of the footing.

On Thanksgiving Day, Medina came to Wadsworth. The weather conditions were ideal and a big crowd was on the sidelines. Wadsworth completely out-classed the Medina aggregation, plunged the line and circled the ends almost at will. Gross went over the line in the first quarter for a touchdown. Medina, by a series of short forward passes, worked the ball as far as our twenty-yard line in the last half. But when Wadsworth again secured the ball, their march down the field was stopped only by the whistle.

Altogether, Wadsworth High School had an unusually successful foot-ball season in 1917. The team went through a heavy schedule without losing a game—a record previously unattained in the history of foot-ball in the local high-school. As a result of its victories, the team claims the championship of Northeastern Ohio. Unlimited credit goes to Coach "Crum" Blough, who worked faithfully to whip the boys into shape, and helped his Alma Mater to put out a winning team.

Base Ball

*1917

The Base Ball team of 1917 was successful, largely because of the proficient coaching of Mr. MacNaughton, who had had much experience along this line, and who knew the game thoroughly. The team was made up of the following: Wilbur Etter (Captain), pitcher; George Baker, pitcher and catcher; Edward Mackey, third base; Willard Hunsberger, shortstop; Edgar Curtis, second base; Stanley Birkbeck, first base; Leslie Baker, left field; Bernard Durling, center field; Bernard Malaney, right field; Adrian Baish and Joe Neath, substitute catchers; Clarence Young, substitute infielder; John Beck and Carl Roth, substitute outfielders.

1918

For the season of 1918, the following veterans are available: George Baker (Captain), Edgar Curtis, Edward Mackey, Stanley Birkbeck, Willard Hunsberger, Leslie Baker, Adrian Baish, Joe Neath, Clarence Young and Carl Roth. Besides these, a good many other promising candidates have come out for practice.

No games have been played so far this Spring because of the bad weather and the prevalence of grippe. Cancellations have made the schedule quite incomplete. The prospects for a good team are bright, if the weather will allow us to get started.

Boys' Basket Ball Season of 1918

The Basket Ball season of 1918 opened with a very promising outlook. While the team keenly felt the loss of Captain Etter and the veterans Durling and Crumley, yet the presence of good material made our prospects bright.

Our first game was with Canton High at home. In spite of the hard work of the squad, they were unable to compete with the strong Canton team. The score was 42-20 against us.

On January 11, the team again met defeat, this time at the hands of Millersburg. The game was fast and furious. At the end of the first half, Wadsworth led, 10-6. But our opponents came back so strong that they left us in the rear, with a score of 18-12.

On the evening of the eighteenth, the Lodi teams came to Wadsworth to meet our two teams. Our boys displayed such unique team-work that the Lodi players at no time had the ball completely in their possession, as the 36-15 score shows.

Central High School, of Akron, handed us a neat little drubbing, to the tune of 25-6, on January 26. Nevertheless, our team showed the same unflinching spirit that is characteristic of all Wadsworth High's teams.

The boys lost to Willoughby, February 1, at home. The game was clean and fast throughout. The visitors led by eighteen points at the end of the first half. Early in the second half, Wadsworth rallied, and cut down this lead. In the last minute of play, W. H. S. tied with her opponents. Just before the final whistle, Willoughby made a long one. The final score was 39-37.

On February 8, the two teams went to Lodi to give them return games. The boys' game was, according to Lodi, the most interesting game played on their floor this season. Lodi played an excellent defensive game, but could not cover the Wadsworth players well enough to prevent our 28-23 victory.

On February 22, the boys' and girls' teams from Berea came to visit us. The boys' game was by far the best played and most exciting of our home games. From the time the ball was put into play until the last whistle blew, the game see-sawed back and forth. The official score was: Berea 40-Wadsworth 39.

Later, Wadsworth again met Millersburg, but this time it was upon our floor. Millersburg, harboring fond hopes of winning, was doomed to disappointment. We won, 60-9.

Carl Roth Wm. Caine Stanley Birkbeck Thorald Crumley George Baker

O. F. Deetz Edward Mackey Robert Harper John Brown

The next games were at Berea. For some reason, the boys were unable to put up the style of game for which they are noted. The contest ended with the lop-sided score of 36-17, against us.

The boys next went to Willoughby. It was, indeed, a tiresome and cold trip. Nevertheless, the team stood up well. The hard-fought-for victory went to Willoughby, 26-20.

We played the last game of the season at Ashland. It was quite a disappointment that the team could not bring victory to the Red and White in their last game. But we were unable to overcome Ashland's lead of the first half, and lost, 37-28.

Altogether, the season was not as successful as we had hoped it would be. Wadsworth scored 354 points to her opponents' 360.

Girls' Basket Ball, 1918

At the end of the season, the Girls' Basket Ball Team was crowned with praise and honor on account of the many victories they had wrested from their opponents—they won all but four games out of the five they played. This success was due to the fact that interest was very slight this year. These same girls won nearly all of their games during the first two years of their athletic career, and it is rumored that they could have kept their reputation had more turned out for practice each evening.

We had an unlimited amount of trouble in finding a coach. After we had searched the school, we secured Miss Kinsey for the position, but lost her when she resigned and went to Cleveland to teach. Regret and misgivings marked her departure. Miss Vanderhoof, her successor, did very creditable work during the remainder of the season.

We have learned that "Honor and fame from no condition rise;" and, as we pass the basket ball to the girls of 1919, with our best wishes, we express the hope that they may bring glory and success to old W. H. S.

Literary Societies

The Crestomathian and Calo Philo Literary Societies of Wadsworth High School consist of all the members of the Sophomore, Junior and Senior classes. At an annual meeting, the upper classmen elect officers from the Junior and Senior classes. An equal number of Sophomores is added to the enrollment of each society.

The two societies held their annual meetings Nov. 19, 1917, and chose their officers. Calo Philo elected: President, Charles O'Meara; Secretary, Gertrude Harter. Crestomathian's choice was: President, Joe Neath; Secretary, Bess Hartman and Sybil Kreider—this last because of a tie.

A new system of making programs is in use this year. Each society elected two persons; these four, with the aid of faculty members, make out the monthly literary programs. The Dramatic Club plays have added a good deal of interest. The programs usually consist of declamations, orations, essays, book reviews, original stories, and a debate or a play. The same number of Calo Philos and Crestomathians take part in each of the various subjects.

In years previous to the last two, the societies have held a contest. The faculty members have acted as judges at all rhetoricals. But in the last two years, for some reason, these interesting contests have passed from existence.

Pa and Ma's Day.

Pa Jenkins gazed out the dining-room window at the heavy frost on what was once a garden spot in the back yard, while Ma poured the breakfast coffee.

"Guess it's going to be another nice day," he remarked. "We won't have many more like it this time of year."

"No, we won't Pa," sighed Ma. "I just dread the winter's coming on."

"Which being the case," mumbled Pa, his mouth full of corn griddle cake and maple syrup, "let's play hookey."

Ma's eyes lighted up. "Oh, Pa," she breathed, "It would be grand! But can you get away from the office?"

"Watch me and see," he replied, reaching again for the syrup pitcher. "What d'you say to packing up a lunch and getting out the flivver and making for parts unknown?"

"I'd just love it," enthused Ma.

So presently Pa, whistling blithely, made his way to the garage to look over and oil up the automobile; and Ma, humming joyously, proceeded to pack the lunch.

"It's colder out than you think," announced Pa, when he stamped in after satisfying himself that the machine was in good running order. "Where's that old gray sweater of mine?"

Ma told him. When he returned in what he considered proper garb for the trip, he wore a long coat, the sweater with its "sport collar" turned up, and a brilliantly checked wool cap.

By that time, Ma had the lunch packed and told Pa to put it into the machine.

"Who's going to eat all that stuff?" he wanted to know. "It's enough to feed a whole regiment."

"I've been feeding you a good many years, Pa Perkins," she retorted, "and I know about what's enough for you. I'll be ready now in a jiffy."

When Pa had the car backed out of the garage, Ma was standing on the door step, bundled to the ears—she does like to be comfortable.

They were finally started; but they didn't hurry. They ambled and they rambled. That's the way of the Jenkins flivver. They liked to see the scenery along the road, and to comment on who was passing. They drove out Gates Mill way, down into the valley and up that giant hill to the east. By and by the machine gently snored its way on second speed to the top of the hill, whence they viewed the valley below. Both agreed that it was a wonderful place to camp.

"It must be noon, any way, by the feel of my appetite," said Pa." Looks like somebody's woodlot up there."

So they drove the machine to one side of the road, and the Jenkins family lumbered out. Ma crawled—or, rather, rolled—under the barbed-wire fence; then Pa shoved the baskets through to her. He followed with the big auto robe, which he spread on a sunny spot in a clearing among the trees.

Ma began to get out the things, including an aluminum fry-pan, a tin coffee-pot and a solidified-alcohol stove. Proceeding in her work, she told Pa she would serve him "steak a la Stanley." Pa could hardly wait, for he knew Ma was a good cook; but he managed to sit still until everything was ready. It is needless to try to describe what followed.

It was quite late when the Jenkins' car rolled into the Jenkins' garage.

"Gee, I'm sleepy," yawned Pa. "But, say, it's been some day; hasn't it?"

"Yee-ah." Ma politely patted her hand over her mouth as she also yawned. "I'm going to bed right away."

Half an hour later, the Jenkins family, including the flivver, was sound asleep.

An Interrupted Nap.

It was a warm summer day, in fact, too warm to be comfortable in the house without the aid of an electric fan or two—which I didn't have.

I stepped out into the back yard, to see if I could find some company and a cool spot. The shade of a maple tree looked like a fairly good imitation of the latter. As I advanced slowly toward it (for I didn't have to run to keep warm), I saw her there, sleeping peacefully on the shaded green grass, her delicate white face against an extra large tuft.

I approached her with the intention of taking her into my arms. She awoke suddenly, and, as if anticipating my purpose and thinking the day too hot for anything of that kind, leaped to her feet and hurried away to her kittens.

—Wesley Wolfe, '20.

A Hot Time.

We met at Fahl's. There were old and young, big and small, all come together for one purpose: he was married.

Promptly at eight o'clock, the advanced guard started in machines. The main body followed in due time. The advanced troops arrived none too soon; for the word had traveled on the wind, and already he was preparing a hasty retreat.

The main body came up quickly and delivered heavy infantry and artillery attacks. After a few hours, he was forced to surrender to us on our terms.

We then marched the captive, under heavy guard, to Fahl's, where we levied an indemnity of one ten-cent treat for each member of the attacking party.

The losses of the conquered were great; for it is said that indemnities alone amounted to nine dollars and thirty cents.

—Robert Hilliard, '18.

A Lucky Burglar.

The Deacon was in love with Widow Perkins. He had proposed fifty times in the last three years, by actual count; but each time the Widow refused. Just lately, she had buried her beloved parrot beneath the old apple tree, beside her dead dog. Now if ever, the Deacon realized, was his chance.

The next day was Thanksgiving. He knew she was going to have a turkey dinner; because, as he looked out of his window, he saw the feathered gobler hanging in insensible dejection, head downward from a nail on the Widow's back porch. He decided to steal the bird; then, as she always did when in trouble, she would tell him of her loss; he would beg and plead that the two lonely hearts join in dinner at his own festal board; and, maybe, while making a hole in the mashed potatoes and filling it with gravy, he would once more pour out his affection from the warmth of his heart.

When he came home from town, he looked toward her back porch. The turkey was gone. At ten-thirty, he stepped out onto the back porch with a revolver in his hand. Fully equipped in his highwayman attire, he went noiselessly over to the Widow's house. Feeling his way along the rock-faced wall, he found the coal-chute.

He told himself it would be best to slide down feet foremost, as the chute didn't reach the cellar floor. He wriggled in, revolver in one hand and lantern in the other. It would have been better if he had left one hand free. But it was too late—he was already sliding.

R-r-r-r-rip! Something had torn, and then something held. He did not fall. Instead, he hung there, suspended, head and feet downward, his hands still clutching the lantern and the pistol. He struggled, kicked frantically and tried to twist loose. It was no use. He could not get free. He thought he would fire the revolver; but he was afraid Widow Perkins might notify the police. Then he called her, but she did not hear him.

As he swung around, he spied a wash boiler on top of a couple of tubs. If he could kick that, he knew she would come. After several misses, he hit it. Rattely bang, bangety bang! Down went the whole pile with a crash! Someone was coming. The cellar stairway was flooded with light. After much coaxing, he persuaded her to come down; but she would not cut him loose until he had explained his actions. Then, without a word she cut him loose, ran up the steps and left him to get out the best way possible.

The next morning, at about ten o'clock, the Deacon's telephone bell rang. The voice of the Widow came over the wire. He told her how sorry he was that he had made such a fool of himself the night before. But she said that she had made up her mind to have him anyway, as she had been dreadfully lonesome since her "Nancy Bell" and "Thomas" died.

All he said was, "I'll be there." Then he hung up the receiver.

—Stanley Birkbeck, '18.

Why Not?

A girl, exquisitely beautiful, wealthy, well educated, of faultless breeding and refinement, strong and healthy, had two suitors. One was a man in the middle thirties, wealthy, prominent in society, cynical, coldhearted and harsh, and with an over powering passion for beauty in any form and a craving to possess this beauty, to obtain it by fair means or foul. The other was a young man a few years older than the girl, handsome, poor, fairly well educated, working his way to a higher education and to the possession of the things he desired most, courageous, honest and faithful to a trust. One desired her beauty of face, form and mind; the other desired only her everlasting esteem and love.

Her mother, a society woman, and, unfortunately, one who looked at outward appearances and not at the real worth of the individual, wished her to marry the cynic; for he possessed wealth and a high social position (important in her mind). The father, a business man, yet one who did not carry his money-getting enterprizes home with him in the evening, wished her to marry the poorer though (shall I say?) better man.

Heart and mind argued and argued and argued, the first for the young man, the second for the cynic. The girl wanted to do as her father wished and as her mother wished. At last, exhausted by the struggle, she told her parents to decide for her. Any one can imagine the rest.

SAUERKRAUT.

'Twas nearly four years back from now,
The Kaiser stood and scratched his brow;
His face had on a terrible pout—
For where was cabbage for sauerkraut?
Together he called his men of state,
And said, with a voice very unsedate:
"Into France you now must go.
No questions now," he said, "just go!
Start at once; and don't come back
'Till all of the towns of France you sack.
Don't you dare come home without
Cabbage for my sauerkraut."

That was four years back, you know;
The Kaiser then could only crow.
Now, in solemn voice doth vow
He'll never start another row:
Nor will he start another war—
He's had his fill (I guess) and more.
"Oh, picture this, then, won't you please:
Your Yank without his cottage cheese;
The Frenchman without pastry;
An Englishman without his tea.
No more French will I e'er rout—
But, O, give me my sauerkraut!"

—Olive Nice, '19.

Taken By Surprise.

"John, can you swim?"

"No. Why?"

"Well, I want to s'posen a case with you, and I want you to give me your real, true opinion. First, you know that you always said that you lubbed me better'n anyone else, even harder'n a box of candy; and I's sweeter to you than pancakes and 'lasses. Now, s'posen me and you was 'goin' on a 'scursion down de ribber."

"Yes, de ribber Ohio," interrupted John.

"Well, as I was 'latin,' s'posen we was a-goin' just nice like, and you put your arm around me, and was a-goin'—a-goin' to—and the biler busted."

"Oh! Mary! Don't talk like dat!" said the surprised but disappointed John.

"Now, John, I was only s'posen this case with you. I want you to mind what I'm sayin'. S'posen we'd flew up in de air, and come down in de ribber, and neither one of us could swim, an' de only thing left of dat old boat was one board, and we bof grabbed. John, would you push me off, or would you get off and let me have the board?"

"Can you swim?" he asked.

"Why, dear me, no; you always knew that I was more 'fraid of water as I was ghosts."

"Well, my conclusion is, that we don't go on any 'scursions on de ribber," he drawled. "But now, Mary, we ain't no s'posen no more cases, is we?" he asked more quickly.

A Supreme Council Meeting.

The Supreme Council of Wxyz was hastily assembled one day, after the confirmation of a report that an under-sea vessel, called a Subaqua, belonging to Hungrstuv, the commercial rival of Wxyz, had unmercifully sunk a peaceful ship which belonged to Wxyz. The Prime Counsellor called the meeting to order. The whole Council sat with knit brows and stern expressions.

The gallery was filled with spectators, from the midst of whom came a deep voice, which shouted, "Down with Hungrstuv!"

"Silence!" roared the Sergeant-at-Arms.

The Prime Counselor again called the meeting to order, and called for motions.

Mr. Bellum, a large, warlike-looking counsellor, moved that war be declared against Hungrstuv. Before the motion could be seconded, the Hon. Pax moved that further investigation be made. Mr. Bellum declared that there was nothing more to be found out. Mr. Tingle, a small, conciliatory-looking gentleman, moved that a compromise be made; whereat Mr. Bellum glared at him. Soon, the meeting was in a tumult.

Finally Mr. Gob (a man who, always being in a dozing state, was considered a profound thinker) made the motion that the meeting adjourn. This was unanimously carried, with the exception of Mr. Bellum, who continued to glare belligerently about him. But the meeting was over, and the disappointed gallery moved off toward home.

Dramatic Club

The Wadsworth High School Dramatic Club was organized November 16, 1917. A committee, elected by the Club, and composed of Mr. Kreider, Miss Dalrymple, Helen Everhard and Charles O'Meara, drew up a suitable constitution. About one hundred and twenty students and teachers signed the constitution, thus becoming the original members of the Dramatic Club. The officers are as follows: President, Edgar Curtis, '18; Vice-President, Willard Hunsberger, '19; Secretary, Leslie Baker, '20; Treasurer, Ernest Seiberling, '18. General control of the activities of the Club rests with the Advisory Board, made up of the following members: Mr. Kreider, Chairman; Miss Dalrymple, Secretary; Mr. Deetz; Miss Swigart; Frances Miller, '21; Karl Schlabach, '20; Elvyn Rickert, '19; Edgar Curtis, '18.

The purpose of this organization, as the constitution states, is "to promote interest in drama, and to increase and improve student dramatics." The Club has produced a play at nearly every literary program that has occurred since it was formed. The first plays were a Latin sketch entitled "Coniuratio Orgetorigis," and an English translation of the French "Rosalie." The casts were as follows:

Coniuratio Orgetorigis

Orgetorix ..... William Caine
Helvetii ..... Eva Long
Ernest Seiberling, Thelma Swigart
Casticus ..... Lura Everhard
Dumnorix ..... Grace Auble
Magistratus ..... Ernest Seiberling
Iudex ..... Lura Everhard
Nuntius ..... Grace Auble
Friends of Orgetorix .....Freshmen Boys

Rosalie

Monsieur Bol ..... Karl Schlabach
Madame Bol ..... Ila Nice
Rosalie ..... Olive Nice

The next production was a Christmas story, "The Spirit of Christmas." The cast:

The Spirit of Christmas ..... Joyce Gunsaulis
Grue ..... Merle Koppes
Michael ..... Floyd Grissom
Musicians .....Nevin Beam, Edward Allen
Vance Baldwin, Mr. Kreider

The type of the last play was different from that of any of the earlier pieces. Fancy a love scene and a proposal on Wadsworth High's stage! The following students took part:

Albert ..... Barras Birkbeck
Henriette ..... Sybil Kreider
Jacques ....Vilas Bixler

The students and teachers took an immediate and enthusiastic interest in the Dramatic Club. So far, it has been an immense success. The student body, which responded so freely to the efforts of the amateur actors; the casts, who always gave their best to the plays they attempted; the stage-managers and stage hands, who helped in the construction work; the manual training boys, who built the stage under Mr. Ransbottom's supervision; and all those who gave their time and effort to the work of the Club during the past year, helped toward its encouraging beginning. We hope the coming year and years will bring even more gratifying achievements to the Wadsworth High School Dramatic Club.

Olive Nice, '19.

A BIT OF FUN

Bess H. (in Commercial Law class): What is compensation?
Frank L.: Compensation is when the minds of two persons bump.

Miss Craig (in Commercial Arithmetic): How large is an acre?
Hilda S.: 640 acres.

Miss Rheinhart: If a boy threw a sack of salt into a creek, who is liable, agent or principal?
Aaron D. Pardee: The fish would be liable.

Miss Rheinhart: What is a lien?
John B.: A lamp post.

Mr. Deetz (in German): What is the day after to-day?
Elvyn R.: Tomorrow.

Mr. Kreider: Yes, my cousin's wife, of whom I was very fond, died. (Laughter from class) It was nothing serious, for she was older than my mother.

Mr. Deetz (in General History): The Roman crowd, when Caesar was offered the crown, probably bowed their heads and looked up.

When he was asked a question by Miss Dalrymple, Elvyn R. said (in Latin): I know nothing.

Barras B. (telling a story in English class): Patsy was an Irishman; and his wife was an Irishman, too.

Freshie: All words in the 1st declension, except filia and agricola, are famine gender.

Fagin: Hey, Jock! Got a knife?
Toot: No; I got a toothache.

Adrian Baish: The purpose of filteration is to filter microbes from the water.

1st Freshie: Gosh, yuh outer see what I writ fur my theme. What did jew write?
2nd Freshie: I hain't wrote mine yet.

Francis B.: Seems to me I have met you before.
Ruby M.: I believe it was at the Circus.
F. B.: Yes, I was in the first cage to draw the crowd and where I could drive them out at the end.

Ernest M. (Explaining Catiline's conspiracy in Cicero class): It's just like this: If you would cut off a rattle from a rattlesnake, he could still rattle with the others.

Francis B. (reading question in German): What did Carl think?
Mr. Deetz: He thought that the donkey was tied at both ends, didn't he?
F. B.: No. He thought the rope was tied at both ends.

Miss Craig: What is thinking?
Donald E.: Thinking is an interrogatory process of reasoning, of the human brain.

Mr. Deetz: Is there anything you can do, Thurman?
Thurman: Yes, I can read my own writing.

Miss Orton (to Freshie Domestic Sc. Class): This coffee tastes like mud.
Freshie: Well, it was ground.

Ralph Smith (in study of Odysseus): I thought that Circe was a goddess and couldn't be killed.
Miss Craig: She was.
R. S.: Oh! I see; Odysseus just scared her to death.

Tiny Kreider (in German): Dogs fly.
Mr. Deetz: Must be bird dogs.
Mr. Deetz (in German): Now what is the meaning of what I just read?
Vance B.: The rat-fetcher of Hamlin.

Miss Reinhart: Well, what do you want to talk about to-day?
Thurman H.: Sugar.
Verda R.: There is hardly enough sugar to talk about.

One of the wonders of the world—Shaggy did not sleep in Chemistry one day. We forgot the date.

Harold S. is playing with Lorna's wrist-watch, and Lorna says: Stop it!
Harold S.: That's what I'm trying to do.

Olive: Pete, you are growing a mustache.
Pete: That's something you can't do.

Wesley Wolfe: Hey, Miss Swigert, can I be punished for something I don't know anything about?
Miss S.: Why no, Wesley.
W. W.: Well, I don't know anything about my geometry lesson.

Mr. Deetz: Describe the theatres of Greece.
Mildred D.: They were buildings built out of doors.

F. Bolich: Hey, Ernest! What is Socialism?

Ernest M.: Well, my son, it's very deep. If you had $500 and I had $250, together we would have $750, wouldn't we?

F. B.: Yep.

E. M.: Well, then, you would have $375, and so would I.

F. B.: And if you had a pack of gum, I'd get two sticks and a half, wouldn't I?

E. M.: You're a crook! You saw me buy that pack of gum. I'm not that simple.

Mr. Webber (telling about the reduction of iron): First they put the iron oxide and coke into the furnace. After it is melted, they run it out into the pigs.

Willa C.: What do the pigs do with it?

A man saw an old negro coming out of a watermelon patch, looking very glum and sober. "What's the matter, Rastus?" he asked.

"Ah's jes feelin' melon-choly, jes melon-choly, Mistah," he replied.

Miss Dalrymple: Yes, some people spell so badly that if I did not teach a foreign language, I would not know what they meant.

A Light Hint—(Seen in a local business house): Those wishing to run an account will please state how far and fast they wish to run it, as our wind sometimes fails us.

Freshie: What did you do in Akron, today?

Ernest M. (sarcastically): Oh, we had dates at the Mary Day Nursery.

Mr. Weber: I have often wished we had a few pictures in the Science Department.

Mr. Deetz: Why, it seems to me the picture of an atom would be appropriate.

Miss Craig: Edward, of what use are field mice?

Mackey: We use the fur.

Freshie: The hero of Irving's "A Royal Poet" is James I.

Mr. Kreider: What's the rest of his title?

Freshie: Well his first name was James; I don't know what his last name was.

Mr. Kreider: Then his last name must have been First.

Senior (bidding goodbye to Mr. Newcomer): Goodbye, Mr. Newcomer. I---er---I am indebted to you for all the Chemistry I know.

Mr. Newcomer (slightly embarrassed): Don't mention such a trifle.

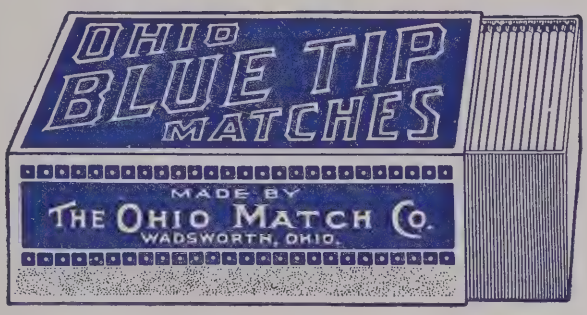
Ohio Blue Tip Matches



For years this name has conveyed to the minds of Americans the thought—"The Best Match Made."

Since the beginning, we have not let one day pass without trying our best to make OHIO BLUE TIP Matches BETTER than they were made the day before.

The OHIO BLUE TIP MATCH is NON-POISONOUS. The Sticks are long and our PATENTED PROCESS treats them to prevent AFTER-Glow. It also tends to strengthen the sticks and to PREVENT the CHARRED ENDS from falling.

Our slogan is: ALWAYS BETTER. The result is that each day the OHIO BLUE TIP is the NEWEST and most SCIENTIFIC Match made in the world that day. The name OHIO BLUE TIP is a household word symbolical of Perfection and Greatest SAFETY possible.

A Declaration of Thanks

While the Class of 1919 has been directly responsible for the production of this annual, The Shield, we do not wish to receive all the credit. We are in a good deal the same situation as an athletic team: we represent the school.

First, we wish to thank the merchants of Wadsworth and Akron, who, by their liberality enabled us to contemplate this under- this undertaking.

We feel that we never could thank the teachers of Wadsworth Hi. for all they have done for us in this matter. Especially we would like to mention Mr. Elliott for his helpful instruction and suggestions; Mr. Kreider and Miss Craig for their invaluable aid in correcting our material; Miss Reinhart, who sacrificed other work to prepare our material for the printers; and Miss Dalrymple for her aid in soliciting advertisements and for the use of her room as the Annual office.

While we have given these teachers special mention, we wish to thank all of them, as well as to congratulate Wadsworth High School on having such a fine corps of teachers, every one of whom helped us to the utmost.

The pupils of old W. H. S. also responded nobly to this, as to every High School activity. The rumor that class spirit was rampant and that it interfered with this production is entirely unfounded. All classes united in making this the best Annual W. H. S. has ever produced. It was with this just as with a great national peril: all party feeling is forgotten and all stand united in a common cause.

Probably the greater part of praise should go to the pupils of Wadsworth Hi., who, by their loyal support and appreciation "did their bit." These but followed out unwritten laws laid down by the Alumni before us. These people, most of them grown up and in business for themselves, show a hearty willingness to help their Alma Mater and a gratifying interest in her undertakings.

We, the students of today, are enjoying the fruits of the labors of those who have gone before us, the Alumni, who made old Wadsworth Hi. what she is today, and our teachers, who by the wealth of their experiences and broadness of heart, enable us to be the men and women of tomorrow.

Will Wadsworth High School ever lose its influence?

Watch us grow.
